Hot words were exchanged, and O'Brien threw the beer at Godman, who thereupon seized him. The proprietor separated them and O'Brien was put out. Godman followed and again assaulted him, knocking him down and kicking him. O'Brien regained his feet and was walking away, having become nauseated by the blows which he had received. Godman again overtook him. Meanwhile O'Brien had taken his knife from his pocket, and while waving his hands to ward off Godman's blows, the fatal blow was inflicted. It is the understanding among some of the leading Democrats here that the real reason the Indiana Democrats in Con-gress are seeking to "throw oold water" gress are seeking to "throw cold water" on the meeting is because they have been led to believe that the scheme to make it pre-eminently a Matthews meeting can not be defeated. William J. Mooney told of a conversation he had with Captain Creedon in reference to seeing Reppenhagen. Mooney had casiled on Reppenhagen about Creedon's appointment. "When 'Repp' tolt me," continued Mooney, "that wiegand was to be made a captain, I agreed to raise the ante from $12,000, the amount that Wiegand had offered to subscribe, to $15,000. 'Repp' said, "That's good. Martin lost several thousand dollars in his race for coroner, and I lost some money; and this $15,000 will be $5,000 for Voorme, $5,000 for Martin and $ to $15,000. 'Repp' said, 'That's good. Martin lost several thousand dollars in his race for coroner, and I lost some money; and this $15,000 will be $5,000 for money: and this $15,000 will be $5,000 for me, $5,000 for Martin and $5,000 for Voorhis, and will just pay election expenses. After that 'Repp' went to the police head-quarters to see Martin, and afterward told me that the appointment could be arranged. I reported this to Captain Creedon, and told him that if I could fo anything to help him I would be glad to dit. He told me to see some of als friends about raising the extra $3,000, and I did so; and the money was raised. Afterward the Captain was appointed. That's all I know about it."

Dr. Parkhurst says that, in his opinion, Superintendent Byrnes was, as a representative of the police department, one of the persons who should by all means be placed on the witness stand; that if suen a proceeding was not had, the records of the committee would not be complete. The Doctor also thought that, whether or not Superintendent Byrnes was implicated, his testimony was important and imperative.

Discord in the Committee.

Senator O'Connor to-day denied that risk, he had asserted, as has been alleged, that Mr. Goff had buildozed and intimiance finitee. In speaking of the proposed continuation of the committee, Senator O'Connor said: "The police department of New York is rotten to the very foundation, and I should be the last to oppose the continuance of this committee."

ever, is a conceded fact, and that this dissension is over the question as to why Superintendent Byrnes and other officials have not been called to testify why Superintendent Byrnes and other officials have not been called to testify is not denied. It is also believed that a misunderstanding exists between Dr. Parkhurst and Mr. Goff with relation to the propriety of summoning Superintendent Byrnes before the committee. With reference to this matter Counsel Goff's assistant, Mr. Jerome, said that it was one thing to put a man in the witness chair and another to get sufficient proof against him to obtain any good results. He thought, however, that Superintendent Byrnes and Commissioner Martin would be called next week, if the committee does not reach an adjournment to-day. Senatur Lexow thinks that the committee does not reach an adjournment, another session will be held to-morrow.

Father Ducey was present before Senators Lexow, O'Connor and Pound arrived this morning. Police Captains Creedon and Westervelt also occupied spectators' seats. Police Justice Voorhis held a consultation with Mr. Goff. In response to questions, Justice Voorhis held a consultation with Mr. Goff. In response to questions, Justice Voorhis said he expected to go on the witness stand to-day. He had turned over all his bank-books to Mr. Moss, and was anxious to y'ndicate himself against the allegation made by John W. Reppenhagen and Captain Creedon. Justice Voorhis said he had not been subpensed the appreciation of the different production. He also said that if not printed to testify he would send a written statement to the committee.

It was late when the first within Adolph Rheihart, was called. He had, last night, been served with a subpena signed John W. Goff. The signature proved to be forged. Mr. Goff said this was only one of the many annoyances suffered by him. He remarked that the work of the committee did not deal with personal affairs.

Policeman Charles Holland testified that he owned a private residence at 1829 Amsterdam avenue, eight lots in Forty-sixth street, six lots in One-hundred-and-forty-second street and a flat house, valued at 322,500. He had been a policeman infeen years. at $22,000. He had been a policeman inf-teen years.

Vitnesses Say Specifications Not Always Followed -- Threats Con-cessing Inspectors Who Gave Testimony-Jeny's Letter.

Charles P. Hollingsworth, formerly a sever inspector, was the first witness be-tere the Council investigating commitat night. The contractor had testithat in the construction of the Geor-street sewer he had some trouble in the inspector because he did some ek on Sunday. Hollingsworth ex-ined that it was because the work as not properly done, and not for the muon that the contractor labored on unday, that he compelled the contractor do some of the work over. He had ald how it was to be done before he left told how it was to be done before he left the job Saturday night, and when he returned Monday morning the work was not as it should have been. Some few bricks were torn out by his order when the contractors appealed to the engineer. He told of several instances where he insisted that the specifications were not followed as they should have been, and he was overruled either by the engineer or some of his assistants. The failure to cayry out the specifications was a gain to the contractor. Little Portland cament had been used in the construction of sewers. On the Merrill street sewer, Rollingsworth said, the defects would undoubtedly shorten the life of the sewers. When asked if he had been treated aquently by the contractors, Hollingsworth said that he had received one glass of sods water. He did not use tobacco or liquors.

B. W. Hartley, who said he has been a rick-layer for fifty years, detailed the ind of work that was done on the Morton-street drain. He said that he had atched that work, as he had to help ay for it. In the sewer was much bad rick work, the filling was poorly made, and a great number of soft brick was sad. He had talked with the men worker on the job, and all agreed that the aspectar would not remain long, as it has the opinion of the men that he "did of stand in with the contractor." Lartley said he saw the consactor take the inspector to another part of the work, and during that me the workmen did a good deal of ouch basins in the sewer that he thinks the wash out in time. He had noticed on alderable poor work on the East-treet sewer, but the brick used, he said, fer first-class.

CHRISTMAS IN THE SCHOOLS. Entertainments On the Last Day Be fore the Holidays.

This was the last day of school before the Christmas holidays. To the children at school, Santa Claus and his sacks full ecial entertainments were provided for the children. In some of the schools this afternoon, the old, old story of Kris Kringle was told, and the older children had the history of Santa Claus, as known in Germany, explained to them.

In other schools the story of the shepherds watching their flocks by night was told, and the more serious significance of the day was called to their attention. In Nigh School No. 1 in the afternoon, the High School, No. 1, in the atternoon, the meaning of Forefathers' Day was explained, and stereopticon views of the "Landing of the Pilgrims," "Plymouth Rock," "The Mayflower" and "Miles Standish" were shown. In some of the schools the teachers presented the pupils with engravings, suitable for framing. Two of these, the "Gleaners" and "The Angelus," furnished topics from which the teachers were able to give an interesting talk to the pupils.

Throughout the schools the Christmas feeling prevalled. Many of the pupils brought small presents to their teachers, which, if slight enough in themselves, were yet sufficient to show that the season had not failed to impress itself upon them and to draw out the Christmas feeling that "It is more blessed to give than to receive." High School, No. 1, in the afternoon, the ing that "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The fourth and fifth year grades of school No. 1, at New Jersey and Vermont streets, gave a Christmas entertainment this afternoon. There were living pictures, in which Santa Claus had a prominent place, and school poems were illustrated. As one of the pupils said, "There were Santa Claus, Columbus, fairles and a lot of other good fellows." The pupils sang songs, which they had learned expressly for the occasion. Miss Belle Goodbart and Miss Spiggot, the teachers in the grades, organized the entertainment.

The physicians, after getting the body of the little sufferer cleansed thoroughly, made an examination of the injury. From made an examination of the injury. From a circle drawn about the navel to the knees, the child's flesh and skin were burned, except two thin strips along the upper part of either leg. The right leg was burned a little below the knee. The physicians came to the conclusion that there was only one way to save the little one, and that was by skin-grafting. The family was not able to employ persons to give portions of the epidermis, nor was the family able to care properly for the little one while the delicate process of grafting was in process. A trained nurse was something that the means of the family would not permit, and the expense already incurred for the little sufferer was a burden. The father is a car inspector for the Pan-Handle road. His family consists of his wife and five children.

The doctors felt it their duty to dd their utmost to save the child's life. Drs. Ferree and Lukenbill say that Freda is an unusually intelligent child, and that she has borne her sufferings with great fortitude. Owing to the fact that she was burned around the body and ilmbs, she can lay in no position that the exposed fiesh is not exposed to the clothing or has to be rested on. The doctors say that her sufferings have been those of a hundred deaths; yet she still clings hopefully and courageously to the spark of life, and her big eyes tell of her gratitude for every attention she receives.

Securing the Skin. When the doctors became convinced that skin grafting was the only means of pre-serving life, they were confronted with the question, where would the skin come from? It was easy to discover where the skin ought to come from, but difficult to find the persons willing to sacrifice such a little thing, even when a human life is question. The doctors decided to attempt the operation last Sunday morning. They asked the parents to go among the neighbors and procure some persons to ive a little of the outer skin of their rms or breast, to begin the operation. When the doctors reached the house they a number of just maturing found a number of just maturing young women and six children—one little girl and five little boys. The last seemed badly scared. The doctors called for volunteers from the older ones, but they shrunk away and some left the mouse. In vain the request was made to those who remained. None volunteered. It was about then that little Edith Meeker, 185 Johnson avenue, twelve years old, stepped to Dr. Ferree and sald she was not alraid to suffer a little pain if it would relieve the little girl in the bed. The doctors assured her that there was no real

BEING REPLACED BY SKIN OF

All the Lower Portion of Her Body

Five weeks ago to-day some children were playing with companions about a bonfire of dead leaves in Johnson avenue. near the Female Reformatory. Among them was Freda Mahl, six years old, who lives at 170 Johnson avenue. Little Freda suddenly shocked her playmates and alarmed the neighborhood with her screams. Her clothing had caught fire, and before assistance reached her all the clothing from her waist to her knees was burned, and she had become unconscious from the pain. A physician was summoned, who suggested the removal of the child to the City Hospital. The removal was made, but the anxiety of the mother caused her to be brought back home the next day. Another physician was called. He insisted that the child be taken to the hospital again. She was, however, refused admission. The physician then re used to take the case. Freda was pro-nounced fatally injured. After several days, August Mahl, the lieve the little girl in the bed. The doctors assured her that there was no real pain attached to the removal of the skin, and her arm was bared. She gid not whimper as a keen razor was passed under the cuticle and a piece about one and a balf inches square was removed. It only smarted her, she said, and when the doctors had dressed the arm and tied a bandage on it, she said she did not feel any pain at all. She seemed happy to have made the sacrifice. Before the skin was removed, the arm had been anti-septically cleansed. After removal, the skin was dropped in a weak sclution of sait water. It was then applied to the surface of the abdomen. The heroism of Edith Meeker had a telling effect, for Sherman Meeker, her brother; Charley Lotz, 138 Johnson avenue, and several other little boys in turn bared their arms and from them enough skin was removed to cover six square inches of Freda's abdomen. The doctors made another appeal to the older ones with the same result. Many of them fled from the house.

The next freatment was the placing of thin guita percha strips over the new skin, and over that a soft gauze. Over this absorbent cotton was placed. Since then the doctors have dressed Freda's injuries every other day.

Tersche's Method.

Tersche's Method.

Dr. Ferree has made a careful measurement of the injured portions of Freda and says that it will require at least 250 inches of skin to cover the child. The doctors use Tersche's method. This method recognizes the epidermis (the thin outside layer of skin) as sufficient to make such an operation successful. for make such an operation successful. Formerly the complete skin was removed, eaving the fiesh exposed. UnderTersche's method only the outer skin is removed and operations have been more successful since this has been adopted. Formerly the enidernis was scraped off the ful since this has been adopted. Formerly the epidermis was scraped off the subject and the under skin alone used. Drs. Ferree and Lukenbill removed the skin in a different manner from the New fork case of last year. There the skin was removed with scissors. It was caught between the fingers and lifted up and the scissors passed under the fingers. In this way only small pieces were secured. Drs. Ferree and Lukenbill made an incision in the skin and then passed the razor under it until the strips were cut. There is, they say, no pain attending the removal of skin—only a smarting, as if the spot had been chafed. In a day or two not even a mark remains.

Only One-Tenth Falled To Grow. Only One-Tenth Failed To Grow. The doctors say that only about onetenth of the skin grafted last Sunday has falled to live and grow. This was greater success than anticipated. If all the skin that will be grafted grows as well, the operation will be more successful, the ctors say, than any of record.

doctors say, than any of record. The case here, they say, is much more difficult than the one noted in the papers the other day in New York. There the child was only burned in front. Here the little one is burned clear about the body and limbs, and a jar of the bed results in great pain. Pain also results from the necessity for her lying on a portion of the burned flesh.

"The case has now reached a point," said Dr. Ferree, "where a great emergency exists. The child's vitality is being daily exhausted, and the lower the vitality becomes the less successful the operation is likely to be. She is in such a pitiful condition that every person humanely disposed ought not to fear to sacrifice a little skin of the arm, when the life of a sweet and hero'c human being depends on it. The neighborhood has been scared, and we can not obtain the persons who will let us semove the skin necessary.

We must appeal to public sympathy for that which will sustain the spark of for that which will sustain the spark of life in this child. For that purpose we desire all who are willing to make this sacrifice to be at the house where the child now is, 170 Johnson avenue, Sunday afternoon et 2 o'clock. I wish the people could thoroughly understand this case. There is little time to be lost. If we can do nothing further in the way of supplying a new skin, I fear the New Year will find the little one gone. She has already borne more than many older has already borne more than many older persons could have borne. Why should there not be a dozen young men who would each give us ten square inches of skin? That would almost half complete cal Watch To Be Kept.

the operation. Then there are many others who ought to be willing to assist in saving a life. We want persons between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five years to call at Mr. Mahl's home Sunday afternoon. If they so desire, they can notify either of us by telephone that they will be there. The parents are devoted to their child, but are poor Germans. They would not reject the services of a nurse, who is really needed, if some person of means would provide one. A great mistake was made by the family when the child was brought home from the City Hospital.

"There is no pain, no danger, no consequent inconvenience subsequent to the removal of the skin, The little portions of skin would make a most valuable Christmas gift to the suffering little Freda."

AMUSEMENTS.

Pauline Hall at the Grand-"Killar ney and the Rhine."

would of itself be sufficient to sustain interest without the musical interpolations which give it the form of operatic comedy. As produced at the Grand Opera House last night by Pauline Hall and her company, it furnished an evening of fine entertainment. The chief point of the plot is made from a confusion of personages by which a lady of rank, first disguised as a peddler, afterward passes for an inn-keeper's wife in her brother's house, in order to study the character of the man she is to marry. From the complications which naturally follow, arise many situations of more than average dramatic interest. The dialogue of the plece, though in the opening scenes perhaps a trifle prolix, contains many bright lines, especially in the part of Lubin. But it is the tuneful, rhythmic music of "Doreas," rather than its lines or situations, that form its most agree-able feature. While wholly of an inci-dental character, it is so full of simple, pleasing melody, and was last night, on the whole, so well sung, that much of the success of the performance was due to it. In the second act there is introduced a novelty in the form of a duet, in which the players describe the sucessive moves they are making at a game of chess. This had to be repeated several

Miss Hall made a good impression in the title role. Her voice is clear and true, her manner vivacious. In the second act her manner vivacious. In "make-up," costume and acting he was altogether satisfactory. Mr. Broderick has a powerful and fine-timbered bass voice, which was heard several times to advantage during the evening. J. Aldrich Libbey, who has appeared here a number of times, and is one of the most successful singers of popular ballads on the stage, is an efficient member of the company. Miss Kate Davis was original and amusing in the eccentric character of Griselda. The house was fairly good. "Doreas" will be given again to-night and twice to-morrow.

"That we have finally awakened to the fact that slowly but surely we are being deprived of all protection which the laws of the land throw about those engaged in other branches of trade, have thereby concluded that by organization alone can we expect to effect a change in this unjust and feasiling sentiment that is a misnomer and relic of superstition that belongs to the age of the Puritan Blue Law period.

"That we deplore the fact that protection for neither life, limb, property nor the safety of our wives and daughters on the public streets are but secondary in importance when the question of convicting a saloon-keeper of giving a drink of spirits away after II o'clock at night or on Sunday is under consideration by our present city officials.

"We favor an organization which shall be in no sense political, but yet declare it necessary to watch all political events with the greatest care. We believe that the political affiliation of our members should be left to the dictates of their own conscience and conviction, and a political party of whatever kind will never meet with our organized opposition so long as it will not surrender to our enemies. Without preference as an organized body for either party, we believe in investigating the personnel of their respective candidates, supporting those whose careers and declarations show them to be enlisting in the cause of personal liberty, and opposing all candidates of whatever party who cater to the prejudices of the investogrant and fanastical." sonal liberty, and opposing all candidate of whatever party who cater to the pre-udices of the intolerant and fanatical."

as follows: To walking to Union station
To visiting Lebanon school house
three hours
To talking to Judge Neal three minutes at 10c per minute
To trying to see sheriff and failing.
To interviewing county cierk.
To cost of late lunch.
To damages in waiting so long for

From the above itemized statement, it will be seen that many items are much lower than they might have been made, and that the bill is, therefore, in every respect, entirely reasonable. No charge is made for this assurance.

Was Once Declared Sane. Willard Robetson, attorney for Atta Names, will ask for her trial Friday, January 4. He says that he will defend her on the ground of temporary insanity. The talk of holding an inquest on the woman develops the fact that an inquest was held some months ago, and the commission declared her sane.

THE CITY CHARTER.

Much is being said at the present time about the desirability of amending the city charter in several important particmars. But it is more than likely that many changes will be suggested and advocated which will, if adopted, weaken our system of city government. The point of attack against which many of the reformers are directing their energies is the Board of Public Works, and potic" power of the board is a favorite theme with those who are oped to anything like a progressive poley. It should be remembered that subally all that has been done to make a modern city has been done under this form of despotism. Of rovements can be pushed too anidly. It may even be that this has I sen the case in this city. But the fact emains that more valuable and permanent work has been completed in the fow years we have had the charter, than during all the preceding history of the town. We do get things done. And that ich. Nor is it difficult to restrain ty of the Board of Public The history of the Alabama street improvement proves that the property-owners are not wholly at the mercy rd. These pictures were for sale, rangrously unjust to force the $250. They were exhibited at a time when le who have already been so severely ute to a general sewer bax. So it seems to us that it is too late n the day to talk about this reform. here would be much to say, however, for a change in the law which would ments for sewers on the e of the property rather than on its

In addition to the charge would simplify matters at the court-house to a wonderful extent, and so would add to the comfort of the rplexed tax-payer and would vastly on the chance for mistakes.

The business of street repairing is well ided for now by the vehicle tax. That is one of the most sensible arrangeits imaginable, and we can not think that there is any serious purpose to interfere with it. The great rule of taxathe present one. Art is long, but time, tion is that those who get the benefits should bear the burdens. The streets are worn out by those who use them, and, therefore, those who use them should keep them in repair. There can be no thle objection to the vehicle tax, nor can the expense which it provides for be provided for in any better way. As for street improvements, it may well be doubted whether it would be wise to change the method of paying for them. The case is much like that of the sewers. A great deal of the work has been done, and to tax those who have already been heavily taxed, to help pay for the street improvements of their neighbors, would ered that improvements must be paid for, and that there is no way of ing the expense. There seems to be a sort of feeling that if there were only eral tax the cost of building streets nd sewers would in some way be lessared. The trouble with many people is that they are unwilling to do their share. This is an unfortunate and disagreeable trait of human nature, but it must be ions of taxation. It is honestly, the burden upon most would be much lightened. The rs do not rob the State, for so ey is raised, and has to be show, but they do rob their ors. So there are at the present many people living on unimproved be very glad to throw part of the the year with its stability seriously te and sewer threatened. The government could not

The communication from Mr. Steele

Mr. Steele well puts it, work from this

INDIANA MEN AND POLITICS

Chicago inter Ocean (Rep.).

The most hostile critics of General Harrison never have charged him with decicinery of the sawing grace of common nense. Ill-natured critics have pointed to the common-place history of his administrative career, though this may be controverted by the passage of a tariff bill under the operation of which the commerce of the Nation reached a highwater mark unprecedented, and for three years at least inlikely to be approached. But none have dared to point out a single failure of policy applied to action, or, with two exceptions, of appointment to high office that failed in representation of American thought. As President of the United States, General Harrison made fewer blunders than any other occupant of that high office.

the United States, General Harrison made fewer blunders than any other occupant of that high office.

Wherefore we commend his advice of the largely Republican Legislature of Indiana, and to all other Legislatures in which the Republican party largely is in the ascendant: Go slow.

The campaign of 1896 will not be wholly as the campaign of 1896 will not be wholly as the campaign of 1896. The election of f huge Republican majority in Congress has estopped any further revolutionary movement toward free trade. The common sense and common interest of the people may be trusted to elect a protectionist President in 1896, always provided that the county and State officials and legislators elected by the protectionist wave of 1894 do not rush on to the Indianous folly of extreme partisanship.

In Indiana it is the duty of the incoming Legislature to repeal the Democratic gerrymander; but they must not supplant it by a Republican gerrymander. In Indiana certain laxities and inefficiencies of the Australian ballot law are in need of amendment; but dare must be taken lest hostility to the Australian system is the most admirable yet presented to the people. Ingenious ecoundrels have found loop-holes in it through which fraud can be perpetrated; it should be the policy of the Republican party to close those loop-holes, not to revert to the old system of voting.

Against such tendencies General Harrison warns the Republican majorities in all States. We are living in a time in which the people are asserting their pre-eminence over politicians. To a clear understanding of his great truth General Harrison seems to have risen, and to a like altitude it will be well if politicians of a far lower legree shall arise.

The Republican Future.

The Republican Future. elphia Telegraph (Rep.)

small-fry politicians and over-s personal admirers of ex-Pres! The small-fry politicians and overrealous personal admirers of ex-Presilent Harrison should be called off.
Scarcely a week passes that some preended authoritative statement concerning the next Republican nomination for the presidency is not made. Then in a few days this is set aside by some sort of a denial or explanation. Indianapoits seems to have a peculiar fascination for a certain sort of news-gatherers, who much resemble the old lady who declined to subscribe for a local newspaper on the ground that when she wanted the local news she made it herself. It seems to be the easiest thing in the world to set affoat any kind of news concerning Mr. Harrison. There seems to be a feverish anxiety to keep the exPresident constantly in evidence, either in person or by proxy. All this is quite medless. Eighteen months must elapse before the next Republican National Convention; not a long time in the life of an American politician, yet within that period there may be some remarkable riod there may be some remarkable anges. Since the last election there has been o much of a disposition on the part of angular supporters of the Republin party to consider the next national nest as already definitely settled. In party to consider the next national nest as already definitely settled. In party to consider the next national nest as already definitely settled. In the consibility, will rather devote themwest to making careful preparations the discussion of the issues of the riy future, and the perfecting of party ganization. Much remains to be done assure Hepublican control of all deriments of the national Government of years hence. The Democratic party identity is in a very bad way; but it is no worse condition than it has been a set many times before. It may content on the high road to ruin, and it y suddenly fetch up and face about the agood deal more vigor and deternation than is now looked for. Then it is be remembered that the spirit of rest and dissatisfaction which has no so marked a feature of politics roughout the West during the past if-dozen years continues, and no one it tell what will be the outcome. There a Republican members of the present and foosen years continues, and no one can tell what will be the outcome. There are Republican members of the present Congress, as before noted, who are shown unseemly haste to get before the wind, revealing inter lack of nerve and a disposition to betray fundamental principles, in order to make their own calling and election sure. These blind, would-be leaders of the blind, are in larger of falling into the ditch with hose who follow them.

The Republican party is not and never has been the party of monopoly, injustice and unfair discrimination; but it must dihere to protection principles, intelligently and courageously. Further, there are be no compromise on the financial question, no matter what the measure of armestness manifested by Western pollicidans, anxious to been in line with erroneous public sentiment at this point. Undoubtedly great pressure has been brought to bear recently on both Governor McKinley and ex-Paesident Harrison to induce these Republican leaders to follow the example of ex-Speaker Reed, and say something to conciliate the silver men; but all such movements manifestly have failed up to this time. Whether there should be an extra session of the Fifty-fourth Congress or not cand it is evident that the President will now a serious time getting on without me—the plain duty of the leaders of the banty is to keep squarely in the middle of the road. They should let the country listinctly understand that there is to be a shifting nor changing, no halting, and so ruinous compromise where great principles are concerned. Otherwise, the bublic mind will grow suspicious and be pute ready to give attention to experimental projects in the next national concest. To-day everything indicates Republican success in 1896; but this will not be promoted in any way through manifestations of unwisdom on the part of hose who assume to speak for the party, or define its policy, or to outline its course of action in the near future, and who show a disposition to waver or leader the party of the party of the part

Praise For Mr. Bynum.

Washington Cor. Louisville Caurier-Journal.

William D. Bynum is another Demogratic statesman who is numbered with the slain. Bynum is a stronger man than Springer, and an abler man. He always adhered to the Carlisle-Morrison-Mills-Wilson school of tariff reformers, and was outspoken in his contempt for those little Democratic Congressmen who tired of hearing Aristides called the Just. For a year he was the victim of about as precious a piece of scoundrelism as ever pursued a public man; but he came out of it triumphantly, and the attempt to destroy him only elevated him in the esteem of his fellows.

From his first appearance in the Forty-thuth Congress. Mr. Bynum was a leading member. Mr. Carlisle early discerned his merit and put him in positions of trust and responsibility, and he always acquitted himself with credit. Since 1855 no city of the Union has been more efficiently represented in Congress than Indianapolis. His successor must prove himself a very strong man to hold down the seat Bynum's retigement makes vacant.

Praise For Mr. Bynum.

GEN. HARRISON DISCUSSED.

Mr. Harrison seems to be unfortunate being continually misconstrued by his sitors.—Waskington Post.

The Indianapolis man who has underliken to contradict false reports about eneral Harrison should employ an sistant. He is overworked.—Cincinnati mes-Star.

sistant. He is overworked.—Cincinnati mes-Star. General Harrison may have said that is will not mareuver for the presidential amination. He may have said that he besn't want the office. But until he rmally withdraws the "emergency" servation, we shall have to regard him among the probabilities.—Rochester end.

We regard it as Mr. Harrison's confinitional right to keep his mouth shut noeming the presidency, and it is a git which he is wisely exercising at its time. The Enquirer is a disinterated observer of the struggles of amitted observer of the struggles of aminous Republicans. It is in a judicial ame of mind. It does not intend to recise any influence upon the Repubnamental convention. It will freely cuss all the quadidates from time to me. Mr. Harrison, as every man of the struggles, will be one of those can didates. He will not be removed from the field by misstatements concerning either his conversations or his silence. He must be considered very strong when the men who oppose him think it is necessary to claim that he is opposed to himself.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dx-President Benjamin Harrison has permitted it to transpire through a friend that he has not authorized anybody to say that he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1896, nor that he is a candidate. But he says for himself (through his friend) that he does not desire the nomination and would accept it only 'under extrems pressure.' It is easy to see, however, that he confidently expects to feel the 'pressure.'—Chicago Herald.

"Sentiment is a tremendous factor in the presidential business," said one of Tom Reed's congressional lieutenants, "and a queer phase of sentiment which we run against every day, and which I freely admit we don't like, is the belief on the part of many Republicans that Harrison should be renominated for the simple purpose of equaling Cleveland's regord. You would be surprised if you knew the strength this idea has with the masses of the Republican party in many sections of the country. It is the strongest thing Harrison has in his favor today, and he knows it. If anyone thinks Mr. Harrison is not a shrewd politician he should hasten to undeceive himself, for the ex-President is as smart as they make them. In holding himself in reserve and not permitting his friends to organize for him, he is pursuing the best possible tactics from his standpoint. This sentiment that Cleveland's record must not be permitted to stand unequaled may help him more than even he is aware of."—Washington Correspondence Chicago Herald.

Opinions Rendered Thursday, December 20, 1894.

16,893. Cyrus W. Phillips vs. William Kennedy et ux. DeKalb C. C. Petition for rehearing overruled. Howard, J.
The facts found are such that fraud should be inferred therefrom, but are insufficient, in the absence of a finding of fraud, to support a judgment against the appellees, and therefore, a new trial should be granted. Theory of Complaint-Liability of

(1) Only one appeal can be taken from the same judgment. (2) Unless all of the judgment defendants are joined as co-appellants, thus affording them an opportunity to assail the judgment against them, the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction, and the appeal must be dismissed.

Frauduleut Transfer-Diligence. 17,051. Rockland Company et al. vs. Wm. A. Summerville et al. APPELLATE COURT. Amendment - Opening and Close

1,369. Peter K. Boyd vs. Martin H. Smith et al. Hancock C. C. Reversed. Lotz, J. Davis, J., dissents. (1) A pleading may be amended at any time before judgment by inserting, or striking out, or modifying any material allegation, so long as the amendment does not substantially change the claim or defense. (2) The plainting is entitled to open and close the argument unless the admissions of the defendant are so full and unconditional as to entirely dis-pense with proof of the complaint. (3) Where a note provides generally for at-torneys, fees, the holder is entitled to torneys' fees, the holder is entitled to recover their value under a general de-mand for damages; and an averrment in the complaint that the attorneys' fees are reasonably worth a certain sum does not estop the plaintiff to prove a greater value.

Relationship to Parties—Competency 1,345. George W. Teagarden, administrator, vs. Thomas L. Phillips. Orange C. C. Reversed. Ross, C. J. C. C. Reversed. Ross, C. J.

(i) One who is as nearly related to either of the parties as second cousin, whether the relationship be by blood or affinity, is incompetent to serve as a juror. (2) Where the juror's wife is a second cousin to the defendant's wife, the juror is incompetent. (3) The fact that the juror was ignorant of the relationship and really tried the case fairly does not make him competent. (4) Relationship by affinity or marriage does not extend to the blood relations of one who is himself only related by affinity.

The News and the State.

The Indianapolis News has celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary, and it is ntitled to the gratitude of every citizen who cares for the character of the State of Indiana. This State has a low political reputation; in fact, it is higher than Ohio, Maryland, Pennsylvania, or even New York. Its dubious name continues because Indiana was bigoted, hide-bound, moss-backed and chained to the party fetish. To the unswerving in-dependence of The Indianapolis News, dependence of The Indianapolis News, and its influence in favor of honest men, honest politics and honest government, for its hostility to spoils and spoilsmen, is largely due the fact that Indiana has outgrown its former condition. A great deal of this feeling for reform is yet inarticulate in the State. It votes, but it does not talk. Its clergy, its school teachers, its colleges are still reticent and timid. The Civil Service Chronicle is sent to the reading-rooms of many Christian associations. It is doubtful whether it is yet put within the reach of readers of one-half of these. There is a leading college in the State which prints in its annual catalogue a list of the periodicals donated and purchased for its reading-room. The Chronicle has been sent for years, but its name is never mentioned. This is old Indiana, fearful of independent speaking. But a new Indiana is moving forward quietly and irresistibly.

In calm weather, a man might live for some time quite comfortably on an abandoned wreck at sea, but he would have an uneasy celing that the first storm might knock the tulk to pieces. So he would fly distress signals and try to catch the eye of some passing skip

While the weather is not too changeable, and they don't work too hard, they laugh at the suggestion that they are not as strong as anybody. But they stop laughing when the winter storms come, and toil and exposure and mental train conspire to break them down

They tell, in a husky and uncertain voice that they feel chilly, when their neighbors de clare that the air is not odd. They have ache that they feel chilly, when their neighbors declare that the air is not cold. They have aches in the head and limbs, a cough and stiffness of the muscles. Sometimes they think they are

A rigid examination will not disclose any organic break-down, but the wise physician is not puzzled. This is the condition, he knows, in which a good stimulant will work wonders which the whole nation is acquainted.

MARKETS IN WHEAT, CORN AND PROVISIONS.

Crops In Foreign Countries.

The weather in the United Kingdom so ar has not shown many signs of the approach of Christmas; slight night frosts have been experienced, but the temperature generally has been mild for the time of year, allowing farmers to do more work in the fields than they might have expected. Meanwhile the young wheat plant looks healthy enough. In France, too, the open weather has allowed farmers in the North to get in their autumn wheat, much of which, it had been ther in the United Kingdom so would have had to be held over the spring; the outlook there is con-d very favorable. In Germany, too, ondition of the autumn sown crops thed as very good, the colder beneficially checking vegetation. r beneficially checking vegetation. Austria-Hungary the reports are vorable, and from Italy very good. in, according to the latest official the autumn sown crops are tery good condition, only 11 per ent. of the area sown being unfavorable, cmall der being satisfactory to good.

craing the last crop in Russia our es polat to the probability of the outturn being less than the prelimiinal outturn being less than the preliminary estimate, as much damage was lone to the crops by rain during harvest. From Adelaids cable advices state that eaping had commenced, and that crop prospects were good, which is a more avorable report than that last received by mall from our correspondent. In the Argentina reaping has also commenced, but the estimates as to the probable yield are very conflicting, one cable releved this week toing so far as to expect only half of last year's crop, while unother cable estimates the yield as probably 25 per cert. below last year. The truth is, that although some damage has been done by the bad weather, it is not early to form any definite idea of the more. Meanwhile it is significant that thippers are by no means anxious sellers of the new crop.

Sympathy For the "thort" Seller. From Congressman Harter's Speech on the Anti-Option Bill. "Now, as to prices. My excellent and able and dangerously eloquent friend from Nebraska stated that the effect of deal-ing in options, etc., was to reduce the price of the article so dear in. Now, sir, any page upon the floor of this House would say at once, 'If this is true, then the markets in which option trading is carried on extensively would be the low-est priced, otherwise you are mistaken. est priced, otherwise you as the markets. The fact is, gentlemen, that the markets of the United States in which opton trading prevails are the high-priced marof the United States of America and of the world; and when you think over the matter you can/see that it could not be otherwise. What makes prices? Debe otherwise. What makes prices? Demand. What helps and greatly enlarges actual demand? Trading.

"Now, the 'short' seller comes in the House of Representatives of the United States for a great deal of blame. I admire the 'short' seller. I sympathize with States for a great deal of blame. I admire the 'short' seller. I sympathize with the 'short' seller. I think the poor devil deserves sympathy. It is he who is always in the most dangerous position. He is like the man in a foriorn hope in time of battle. He can not often hope to be a winner. In the first place he develops a new demand for the grain he sells, and that puts up the price of it. Why? Because, in the first place, he can not sell unless there is a buyer, and by his own 'short' selling he makes himself a nestitive and anxious buyer; later on he must be a buyer, no matter whether he wishes to or not. In every time of disaster, in the hour of panic, in the midst of bank disturbances, who is it, I ask you, who maintains the prices of stocks, the price of otton, the price of wheat, and of corn? It is the 'short' seller, and the 'short' seller alone."

Stocks and Gold Exports.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the public is not in the market, and its appearance can not be expected and counted upon until present conditions is a curious factor, and experience is wasted upon it, for, in spite of so many lessons, it will doubtless continue to buy stocks when they are high and sell them stocks when they are high and sell them when they are low. People who will not touch Birlington and St. Paul and others at these prices, will, at some later period, be buying them 20 points higher to hold. Now is the time to buy stocks to hold and put away in a little camphor. Burlington around par is generally not a purchase to hold. The professional traders are closely watching the exchange market. Gold exports are foreshadowed, and it is claimed in New foreshadowed, and it is claimed in New York that any considerable outflow of the yellow metal will mean a considerathe yellow metal will mean a considerably lower market. The bulk of the gold for such shipments would unquestionably be withdrawn from the Treasury, and thi Treasury reserve would not stand such inroads long, before it would once more sink below the one hundred millions mark. It is this fear of what a continued export movement might bring about which is causing the authorities at Washington to show such anxiety for immediate currency reform.

Cotton Seed as Feed. South Omaha Stockman.

'A few years ago cotton seed was regarded as a nuisance, while now the many uses to which it and its products are being put lead to the belief that its value is just being found out. The Drovers' Telegram contained the following item a day or two ago:

"A good deal of cotton-seed meal is coming from Texas for feeding in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. One firm here has brought twenty-five cars up, and they expect a large movement of it. It can be laid down here for about $16 a top. That is very little above the cost of grain and considerably cheaper than corn. With cotton-seed meal, oil cake, corn from the South and wheat being fed to live stock, the demand for corn here has been materially cut down."

A well-known Omaha firm informs us that it has shipped over seven hundred car-loads into Nebraska recently, and emand is on the increase. In feed-value cotton-seed meal takes high containing 50.81 per cent. of portein and 18.01 per cent. of fst. Cotton-seed hulls contain 4.76 per cent. of portein and 3.50 per cent. of fat.

The failure of the corn crop would not curtail feeding operations to such an extent as it has if the value of other feeding materials was more generally known. Cotton has been king and corn has ben king, but the day of kings has beased.

Plax Seed In Argentine. Flax-seed is passing well through all its trial, and a very large crop may be looked upon ac almost a certainty. Cutting will begin in the North and Northwestern diswithin a week or ten days. The the frosts have done harm, and on the frosts have done harm, and on the of the old lands grain is small and tyeled. The crops on the new lands, however, excellent. From present ap-rances it seems that the coming crop I not be equal in yield or quality to the ast. The quantity is not likely to show my particular failing off, owing to the inreased area of land under cultivation.
Some hallstorms have been experienced, out have done little damage, and our old riends, the locusts, are too busily enaged with family matters to devote any ttention to cereals.

ppers to-day are paying only 16c tresh eggs. This is an unprecedent-low price for this time of year, and sgs average by weight one and a pounds to the dozen, this makes at the retail price now prevailing a y cheap food product. Collectors taking force than twice the number taking in more than twice the number taking in more than twice the number of eggs than were procurable a month and if the open, warm weather conse, shippers will still further reduce the paying price. The eggs now being received are of good size, and larger than those of a month ago. Cramberries are climbing up in price. Ordinary berries are now $3.75@4.00 a bushel; $11@11.50 a barrel, while fancy dark are quoted at $13 a barrel. Bellefleur apples are now quoted at $5,50.

UNION COMPANY'S SHEDS.

DAMAGES CAN NOT BE COLLECTED BY PROPERTY OWNERS.

Decision of the Supreme Court In the Case of Catharine Dantzer vs. the Union Railway Company-Judge Hackney's Opinion.

The Supreme Court to-day held that property-owners damaged by the contruction of the Union station across Illinois street can not collect therefor from the company. The decision was given in the case af Catharine Dantzer against the Indianapolis Union Railway Company. This suit is one of a number brought by property-owners in South Illinois street, and it was taken to the Supreme Court as a test case. When Union station was built and a part of Illinois street was taken as a shed, property south of the tracks on Illinois street and along McNabb street is said to have depreciated greatly. Catharine Dantzer estimated the damage in her case at $30,000. The sum involved indirectly in the decision amounted to several hundred thousand dollars. The opinion of the Supreme Court today was written by Judge Hackney, who says, in concluding an exhaustive review of the case:

"In the absence of authority from other States, there could be no escape from the conclusion that our court has gone so far in the direction we have shown as to deny a recovery by the appellants. They have ample means of access to their property, and the vacations complained of do not affect the access of their lot front, but are remote from

of their lot front, but are remote from it. If they have suffered in the depreciation of the value of their property by the inconvenience of the public travel to reach it, or of the appellants to reach other parts of the city, that inconvenience is suffered allike by those who may desire to go to the appellant's property, or from that property to other parts of the city. It is, therefore, an injury suffered in common by appellants and the public in general, though the degree of appellants' injury may be, and probably is, the greater."

Judge McCabe dissents from the opinion. Judge Howard writes a concurring opinion, in which he says, "I am of the opinion that the owner of real estate abutting upon a street or highway should be allowed such damages as he suffers for obstruction to the freedom of access to his property, whether such obstruction is located immediately in front of his property or not."

is located immediately in front of his property or not."

Supreme Court Changes. venes again in January two of its mempers will have gone, and two new judges will have taken their places. Judge J. S. Dailey and Judge S. D. Coffey will retire; their places will be taken, respectively, by Judge L. J. Monks, of Winchester, and Judge J. H. Jordan, of Martinsville. Judge Dailey will return to Blufton and Judge Coffey to Brazil.

Appellate Court, this afternoon, was reversed. Wilson owned real estate at the southeast corner of Market and Illinois streets, and Dyer, in the lower court, sued for $920 commission for finding a purchaser. Wilson concluded not to sell, and claimed not to owe a commission. The Court sustained him.

Damages For Stein. In the Appellate Court, William Stein, a brakeman, got a judgment for $8,000 against the Ohio & Mississippi railway. A. G. Smith was his attorney, and the decision sustained Smith's record of never having lost a case against a rail-

Maggie M. Haney at the bride's sister's, 145 Hadley avenue.

A small delegation of alleged union men went over to West Indianapolis, yesterday, and, becoming slightly affected by intoxicants, visited the new city hall building. Meeting Councilman Gish there, they called him a scab councilman, and abused him to such an extent that he started away from the building to get free from coming trouble. They next approached Jewett Jones, the contractor for the building, and the words, "You're a liar," from one of them, was followed by a knock-down blow by Jones. It was useless for the other Indianapolis representatives to attempt to aid their companion, for the West Indianapolis man had all his fighting clothes on, and "licked" the Indianapolis delegation two or three times over before he was hedged in by his friends.

PHOTOGRAPHY AND CRIME.

The Eyes of a Murdered Woman R moved For Experiments.

Jamestown, N. Y., December 21.-Pho tographic science may have given the first tangible clew to the identity of the murderer of Mrs. Shearman and Mrs. Davis. Several people have been suspected and the clews followed up without success, but yesterday the impres-sion of the murderer was found on the retina of Mrs. Shearman's eye. The photograph was taken by Fred S. Marsh, a local photographer, and to him is due the credit of having originated the ligible account can be arrived at from Knight, except through his brother, who is the only person who can understand him. The officers found the woman in a little back room, lying on her back in a pool of blood long since ciried. Two sacks of potatoes had been rudely thrown over her, while a bundle of rags and old clothes half covered her body. Investigation showed that the most brutal treatment had been dealt the woman before her life had been taken. Her clothes were disordered and clotted blood held them to the floor. The entire top of her head was crushed in, evidently accomplished by a heavy, blunt instrument. She hay on her back with her arms at her sides, her head turned to the right, her right limb straight out, and the other drawn up a little.

Mrs. Matson was a member of the Topeka Equal Suffrage Association, and a prominent suffrage wocker. For many years he was a member of the city board of education from the Fifth ward, and took an active interest in the city schools. She was at one time a city teacher, and was very well known locally. She was generally supposed to have considerable money, and owned five or six houses on the East Side. Her husband left her four or five years ago, and took up a homestead in California, where he has since lived. idea of examining the organ. The existence of the impression of the murderer on the eye was first discovered by means of a powerful microscope. Unfortunately, the features of the man could not be seen, as the view obtained shows only the back and a very little of the side. An apparently big man is repre-sented, with bushy whiskers and wear-ing a long overcoat. The coroner has taken out both the eyes of the murdered woman and another photograph will be taken by a skilled photographer. No impression was discoverable on Mrs. Davis's eyes. The removal of the murdered Mrs.

The removal of the murdered Mrs. Shearman's eyes for a second photographic experiment has not been rewarded with success. The eyes are covered with a covering, which prevented discernment of the figure seen yesterday afternoon. Various chemicals were tried to clear the cyes, but failed, and the experiment was abandoned. Coroner Bowers, Fred Marsh and Sheriff Jenner said to-day that they would take their said to-day that they would take their oath that the figure was plainly visible before the eyes were taken from the body. The coroner thinks it was a misbody. The coroner thinks it was a mistake to remove the eyes, and that if they had been undisturbed, the photographs could have been easily obtained.

Much interest was taken in this experiment, and the outcome will be a disappointment to many who expected to secure a photograph from the eyes, with the hope of getting some clew to the murderer.

Guarding Non-Union Employes.

Elwood, Pa., December 21.—Sheriff Douthitt has been called here to guard the non-union employes of the tin-plate mill, which has been put in operation. About sixty men and women are at work.

Susie Weaver, a Pittsburg girl, employed in the mill, was jeered on her way home by women sympathizers of the former employes. She drew a large revolver, fired several shots in the air, and the women beat a hasty retreat. It is rumored that threats have been made to burn the hotel where the workmen are quartered, and it is closely guarded.

California Swamp Lands.

San Francisco, December 21.—Commissioner of Public Works Rose has made a report on the reclamation of the swamp lands in the interior of the State, which originally comprised 1,750,000 acres. For forty years efforts to reclaim these lands

Topeka, Kas., December 2.—The body, of Mrs. A. D. Matson, stiff and cold, and lying in a pool of her own blood, was discovered in her home at Fifteenth and Monroe streets yesterday afternoon. To all appearance the woman had been dead about ten days. Mrs. Matson lived alone, and it was generally supposed she had considerable money about the house. The only person who seems to know anything about the crime is a deaf and dumb colored man named George Knight, who saw two men, probably on the evening of the lith, enter the window of the murdered woman's house and afterward saw them run away. No intelligible account can be arrived at from Knight, except through his brother, who is the only person who can understand Topeka, Kas., December 21.-The body

MEAD'S LIPE INSURANCE.

The Companies Paid $35,000 On Him and Are Now Investigating.

Los Angeles, Cal., December 21.-Life have discovered another fraud at their expense. A. J. Mead met with an accident one evening about six months ago, dying subsequently. He was found in an injured condition in the rear of his house by members of his family, but a physician was not summoned until twelve hours later. Many circumstances surrounding Mead's death were mysterious. He carried 340,600 on his life in various companies, and all the policies were paid except $5,000 in the Interstate Casualty of New York.

The companies finally made an investigation, and now claim to have discovered that the evidence of the principal witness for the Mead family was perjured, he claiming to have been an eyewitness to the accident when he had never seen or known Mead.

MR. FARRINGTON'S SUICIDE.

It Was Probably the Result of Financial Troubles.

Brewer, Me., December 21.—F. P. Farrington, treasurer of the Brewer Savings Bank, and a well-known dry goods merchant of this town, arose at 4 o'clock this morning, and, going down stairs, shot himself through the head with a revolver. He died in half an hour.

Farrington was fifty five years old and Farrington was fifty-five years old and married. Some years ago he met with financial reverses, and had to part with much of his property to satisfy his creditors, but since then his solvency has never been questioned. The bank examiner's report shows the affairs of the bank to be in good condition. The cause of the suicide is unknown.

It is thought his mind was shattered by the bloody scene at the bank.

Huntington, W. Va., December 21.— Lulu H. Darrington and Allie Harless, two muscular young women of this city, age about twenty-four each, have been incensed at each other for some time, incensed at each other for some time, and a match was finally got up by friends of both parties, to take place within ten miles of the city. Last night the combatants and several other people repaired to the Ohlo shore, time was called, and the mill began. Both women fought desperately in the first found, but it was plainly shown that the Darrington woman was outclassed. NAPOLEON

The lat of superiority on this dreadful day uld have been hard to decide, but the tory, if rightly claimed by either par-must be pronounced to have remained by, must be pronounced to have remained with Napoleon; for Bennigsen retreated and left him master of the field of battle, where he slept and remained for days; but it was a ghastly triumph. During the whole time the hattle lasted Napoleon's countenance was never observed to the state of th poleon's countenance was never observed to change; nor did he show any emotion whatever: but all accounts agree that he was deeply impressed with the horrors of the succeeding night.

Finally, on the 19th of February, Napoleon left Eylau and retreated with his whole army to Osterode on the Vistula. Here he established his headquarters, living in a sort of burn and there governing his empire and controlling Europe. The doubtful issue of the battle of Eylau had given a shock to public opinion, and it required all the Emperor's prudence and address to overcome it. Great despondency was produced in lespondency was produced in the bulletin of the battle and a marked depression took place in the Napoleon soon decided that it would be fatal rashness to engage in another campaign in Poland while several fortified towns, and above all Dantzic, held out in his rear. He determined to have all these places and to summon new forces from France before again meeting in the field such enemies as the Russians had proved themselves to be.

Dantzic was at length compelled to surrender on May 7, 1807, Marshal Lefebvire receiving the title of Duke of Dantzic in apminemoration of his important success, after which event Napoleon's extraordinary exertions in hurrying supplies decided that it would be ary exertions in hurrying supplies France, Switzerland and the Rhine try, and the addition of the division of 25,000 men which had captured Dantzic, enabled him to take the field again by the list of June at the head of not less than 250,000 men. The Russian general had also done all in his power to recruit his also done all in his power to recruit his army, which was now reinforced by 30,000 men during this interval.

The Russians were in the field by the lift of June and were the first assailants; but nothing but skirmishes resulted until the Russian army was forced to retire toward Helisberg, where it halted, and there concentrating its forces made a most desperate stand. It was, however, overpowered by superior numbers, after maintaining its position during a whole day. The battle had continued until midnight upon terms of equality, and when the morning dawned the space between the Russians and French was literally sheeted over with the bodies of the dead and wounded.

The Russians retired after the battle, crossing the river Aller, and on the 13th of June reached Friedland, a town of some importance on the west side of the Aller, communicating with the eastern, or right bank of the river by a long wooden bridge. It was the intention of Napoleon to induce the Russian general to pass by this narrow bridge by the left bank, and then to decoy him into a general setting in a position where the general setting is a setting in the setting in the

Cirverly Entrapped.

Napoleon was at first unable to believe that Bennigsen would venture to leave toy part of his army for any period in se perilous a position as that in which he had placed it, maintaining a doubtful combat with no means of retreat but through the entanglement of the town of Friedland, and across the long, narrow bridge of the Aller. His astonishment was great, therefore, when he learned from the officers he sent-to reconnoiter that the whole Russian army was crossing the bridge, with the exception of one small division, and forming in front of the town. He had secured a victory by his numbers and position, but his remark to Savary, who carried him the information of the Russian movement, was characteristic, "Well," said he, "I am ready now; I have an hour's advantage of them, and will give them the battle, since they wish for it."

The French skirmishers advanced in force, heavy columns of infantry began to show themselves, batteries of cannon were placed in position, and Bennigsen found himself in the presence of the whole French army. His position, a sort of plain, surrounded by woods and broken ground, was difficult to defend; with the town and a large river in the rear, it was dangerous to attempt a retreat, and an advance was prevented by the inequality of his force. Bennigsen found it expedient to detach 6,000 men to defend the bridge at Allersberg, some six miles from Friedland, on the Aller, and with the rest of his forces he resolved to maintain his present position until night, hoping for Prussian reinforcements from General L'Estocq, via the town of Wehlau.

An Anniversary Day.

An Anniversary Day. At about 10 o'clock on the morning of the 14th the French advanced to the at-tack. "This is the 14th of June; it will be a fortunate day for us," said Napole-on, recurring to the most glorious day of his life; "it is the anniversary of the battle of Marengo." The broken and wooded country which the French occu-pied enabled them to maintain and renew their efforts at pleasure, while the Russians in their exposed position could not make the slightest movement without being observed. At about noon the French seemed to be sickening of the contest and about to retire. This, however, was only a feint to give repose to such of the forces as had been engaged and to bring up reinforcements. The cannonading continued until after 4 o'clock, the Russian line having sustained charge af-ter charge and had neither recoiled nor Russian line having sustained charge arter charge and had neither recoiled nor broken before infantry or cavalry. Napoleon, from his point of obeservation near the battlefield, had witnessed the failure of every strategem and the charge of every division, and at last finding the day waning, drew up his full force in person for the purpose of making one of those desperate and generally irresistable efforts to which he often resorted to force a decision of a doubtful day.

There was not a marshal in his empire under whom the troops would not behave gallantly, but when the Emperor put himself at the head of his army and led them to the charge, nothing could resist the shock. The brave Oudinot, hastening up with coat perforated by balls, and his horse covered with blood, exclaimed to the Emperor: "Make haste, sire; give me a reinforcement, and I will drive all the Russians into the water!" The day was far advanced and some of Napoleon's lieutenants were of the opinion that they ought to defer the final and decisive movement, till the morrow. "No! No!" replied Napoleon. "One does not catch an enemy twice in such a scrape." He then made his disposition of the several corps for the final attack.

People Who Were Almost Persuaded to Become Christians.

Hall is ended, the Chapman revival serv ices will be a thing of the past. As Dr. Chapman stood on the platform last night, he said that never before had he en results so remarkable. A noticeable thing in this city, he said, is the great number of men who have accepted the Christian religion. Many of these con-verts are men who have never before taken even a passing interest in things

For some time the choir and the congregation sang, led by P. P. Bilhorn's leep voice. During the song service Benjamin Harrison came to the platform, and took a seat close beside the choir leader. It was announced that Mrs. Rondthaler, wife of the Tabernacle church's pastor, was lying critically ill, with slender hopes for her recovery. Chapman asked the Rev. Dr. H. A. Buch-tel to pray, and preachers, singers and congregation bowed their heads. The sermon last night was upon the children of Israel, who came into Ka-desh-barnea, after forty years' of journeying, and then failed to take God at His word and march into the promised land. The preacher said in part:

"The saddest thought, it seems to me "The saddest thought, it seems to me, which any man could have would be to know that he had almost been persuaded to be a Christian, and then had been lost. It is dangerous to stop, as did the Israelites of old, in Kadesh-barnea. You can not be saved, and retain a single sin. God commands an unconditional surrender. God will help a man to give up sin.

surrender. God win help a man to up sin.

"Do you think it is the right thing to be a Christian? There is not a man in Tomlinson Hall who will not say that it is both right and manly. But if I were you, and had made up my mind not to be a Christian, I would get up now and hurry away from this hall. Why? Because you will carry into the next world the memory of this—that you were once at Kadesh-bornea and were lost."
